OMEGA Laboratories

Hair Alcohol Testing

Ethanol - The Legal Drug

Millions of people engage in ethanol use worldwide. Omega's Hair EtG test may help differentiate between social drinking and problematic alcohol consumption, catering to the needs of employers, courts, educational institutions and clinics by providing valuable insight.

Comprehensive Testing - The Omega Difference

Omega can now test for the "Drinking Standard" of Ethyl Glucuronide (EtG) in hair. Hair EtG test detects metabolites deposited from alcohol use over the last several months. Omega's Hair EtG test is conducted to forensic standards that are covered by our industry-leading credentials and validated via independent proficiency testing programs.

|---|---|
| Test Timeframe | 1.5" (3.81cm) of head hair provides 3 months of history (standard test) |
| Hair Required - Standalone test: | 90-120 strands of head hair 1.5" (3.81cm) long |
| Hair Required - Addon test: | Additional sample required (+50 strands of head hair 1.5" long) |
| Laboratory Turnaround: | 3-6 days |
| Laboratory Process: | LC/MS/MS Screen & Confirmation |
| Panels Available: | EtG, H10P+EtG, H13P+EtG, H17P+EtG |
| Cutoff Level: | 5pg/mg |

Omega Benefits

- Highest level of credentials for legal defensibility
- Decades of experience as the Hair Testing industry leader
- Cost effective testing with rapid turnaround times
- EtG testing can be ran independently or combined with standard drug test panels
- All testing supported by Omega's online Custody & Control Form (oCCF)

Interpretation of Hair EtG Results

Hair EtG test results can be interpreted using international standards such as those provided by the Society of Hair Testing (SoHT). These guidelines provide ranges that may allow our clients to differentiate between different alcohol usage levels.

As with a standard hair drug test, note that a Negative result may be indictive of either low-level usage or possible abstinence. In general, hair specimens are analyzed to show lifestyle choices including repeat usage.

While hair EtG samples can be segmented and shorter lengths can be processed, the SoHT guidelines urge caution when interpreting these results. Segmenting hair into shorter lengths may help establish trends (EG help demonstrate reduced alcohol ingestion in a more recent time period.

| | Negative | Social Consumption | Excessive Consumption |
|---|---|---|---|
| Hair EtG (pg/mg) | 0 - 4.9 | 5 - 29.9 | 30+ |

 Data from the 2019 SoHT consensus statement.*

Process Overview

The four main steps involved in the laboratory processing of a drug test result are Accessioning, Screening, Extraction, and Confirmation.

Accessioning involves the initial processing of a sample into a laboratory's system. This includes verifying that the sample was sealed and shipped properly, assigning a random LAN (Laboratory Accessioning Number), and completing any additional data entry not provided by an electronic chain of custody system.

Screening involves an initial quick check for drugs of abuse. While Screening is a cost-effective way to rule out drug usage on the majority of samples, a positive screen needs to be confirmed to be admissible in court. Any samples that are presumptively positive in Screening do require a secondary confirmation.

If a sample is presumptively positive in the Screening stage, more hair is pulled from the initial specimen and prepared for Extraction. In this stage, drugs are extracted from hair at a much lower concentration than in other methodologies (ex. urine or oral fluid), which is why hair drug screening is the most difficult methodology to perform.

Confirmation of any positive screening result is conducted via GC/MS, GC/MS/MS or LC/MS/MS. All presumptive positive samples are washed prior to confirmation as needed. The entire laboratory process from Accessioning to Confirmation is reviewed under both the CAP (College of American Pathologists) Hair designation and the accreditation to ISO / IEC 17025 standards.

Subject: Re: KF0019 - FW: ALCOHOL & DRUG TESTING PRICING AND INFORMATION
Attachments: INV-202504.pdf

Good Evening Mr Elliot
I have attached my invoice. As previously discussed, Mr Faucitt's assessment is contingent on what the other two parties do. The first two line items on the invoice would thus be the basic start of the process. These amounts would thus bedue. It usually takes an hour to complete a basic clinical or psychiatric interview. In forensic assessments it can take longer. I can always bill more time if it takes longer. I may need to contact the client later to obtain further information- once again, I can bill this later.
The basic requirements for an assessment of this type would be the clinical interview, administering psychometric tests and consulting with collateral sources. If this assessment goes further, we will need to do all of that. If your client wants to, we can continue with the psychometric assessment. That may save him a trip in the future. Alternatively, we could wait to see what the other parties decide and hold off on this process for now.
I think it would be wise to wait before we decide what to do about a report.

Kind regards,
